Remote patient monitoring encourages patient participation in the daily monitoring and management of their own chronic conditions by providing vitals readings and trending between clinic visits. Health coaches guide the patient's journey through nurse, lifestyle and nutrition telehealth visits. Providers receive information on the progress of their patients between visits, as well, assisting in medication management and treatment planning. Patient engagement techs assist in educating patients on this new type of health care, providing real-time technology support, and coordinating provider reporting and IT support visits.
